INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 4.

Subject: Peter and Cornelius, Acts 10:1-48—Golden Text, Acts 10:35—Commit Verses 13-15—Commentary on Day's Lesson.

TIME.—A. D. 40. PLACES.—Caesarea and Joppa.

EXPOSITION.—I. A Godly Soldier, 1-8. The central figure of this lesson is a captain in the Roman army. The barracks at Caesarea would seem to be a most unlikely place to find the first Gentile convert to Christianity, but there is where he was found. Cornelius was a God-fearing man. He was one who did not keep his piety to himself, but called upon his whole household to share it with him. He was a man of prayer and a generous giver. He prayed for light (cf. vs. 31, 32) and followed the light when it was given. It was because he asked for light that he got it (cf. James 1:5). The alms he gave to others had much to do with God's giving the saving truth to him (cf. Luke 6:38; Prov. 21:13; 2 Cor. 9:6-8). Cornelius does not seem to have been a proselyte of the Jewish faith (v. 28; cf. ch. 11:13) and he certainly was not as yet a saved man (ch. 11:13, 14), but he was on the road that leads to salvation. He became a saved man by believing on Jesus Christ (v. 43; cf. ch. 15:7-9). There are those who contend we should never get a man to pray until he is definitely saved, but it was in answer to prayer that Cornelius got the light by which he was saved. Of course, if a man is a deliberate rebel against God, we should not get him to pray; for the prayer of such a one is an abomination unto God (Prov. 15:8; 28:9; Is. 59:1, 2). But a man may be a sincere seeker after truth like Cornelius, though he has not yet found the truth. There is nothing better for him to do than to pray (James 1:5). God will always lead into light all those who sincerely desire it (John 7:17). It was while Cornelius was praying that the first leadings came to Cornelius. It is when we draw near unto God that He draws near unto us (Jas. 4:8). Cornelius was frightened by the celestial visitor as sinful man always is by the approach of the supernatural (cf. Dan. 10:11; Luke 1:12-13; 24:5). But Cornelius while frightened maintained his equilibrium and was ready to obey; he was every inch a Roman soldier. He was encouraged by being told that God had noted and remembered his prayers and alms. His prayers and alms did not save him (ch. 11:13, 14; 10:43), but they had prepared the way for his salvation. God takes note of sincere prayer and of the alms that accompany them. Praying and giving should always go hand in hand (1 John 2:16-22). Cornelius' faith was put to a severe test; he was told to send to a certain unknown man who would tell him what he ought to do (cf. ch. 11:14). The angel himself might have told Cornelius this, but it is the plan of God to have the way of life made plain to man by man (cf. ch. 9:6-17; 2:28). Cornelius proved his faith by his prompt obedience. Cornelius' faith was of the communicative sort; for the soldier who waited upon him continually was also a religious man.

II. Peter Prepared to Preach the Gospel to the Gentiles, 9-20. While God prepares one man to hear the Gospel, He also prepares another man to preach it to him. It certainly cannot be explained away as empty dreams of a fevered imagination that Cornelius at one end of the line saw an angel who bade him send for Peter, and that Peter at the other end of the line should have a vision preparing him for the call just before the messengers arrived, and should hear the voice of the Spirit bidding him go. There is, beyond question, a supernatural world and a possibility of present contact between the supernatural world and human life. History demonstrates this. One can be an Atheist or a Deist or Agnostic only by deliberately shutting his eyes to the established facts of history. Note how the supernatural and natural play into one another in Bible history: Peter's hunger was natural, and there is nothing more natural than that a hungry man dream of eating, but God gave supernatural direction to the dream that had a natural origin. God knows how to time things just right. Just when Peter was in a perplexity about the meaning of the vision of unclean beasts, the "unclean" Gentiles are asking for him at the gate. The Spirit was very definite in His words to Peter. He told him just how many men there were at the gate asking for him (v. 19). Peter had a very practical test as to whether it was the Spirit of truth that was speaking to him. How unlike the confused and uncertain (often-times mistaken) voices that people tell us are voices of the Spirit. When the Spirit sends there is nothing left to do but to go and that without doubting, even though we do not understand at all (v. 20). Peter's faith was equal to the occasion, he obeyed orders. It was while Peter was in prayer that the guidance came to him (v. 9).

Breaks His Bridge.

He that cannot forgive others breaks the bridge over which he must pass himself; for every man has need to be forgiven.—Herbert.

A Bad Plan.

Running another down is a poor way of making the Christian race.

POOR OLD DAD.

"Father, we're going to give a carn dance. The men are to wear overalls and the girls gingham dresses."

"Well, for once you've hit on something homely and sensible."

"So glad you approve. Now I want 50c to buy a gingham dress with."

PRACTICAL ADVICE ABOUT DIVERSIFIED FARMING

Give the boys a show. Such investments will pay as well as any you can possibly make.

A good night feed is parched corn, fed warm.

Bad luck, in most instances, is bad administration.

Much pepper is too stimulating and irritating, but a little is warming and sustaining.

Keep pure-breds, either for eggs or meat, and keep them pure.

The scraps from the table will produce better results if given to the hens than to the pigs or cows. Give plenty of milk also.

Filth and disease are the worst foes of the poultry yard.

Green Cut Bone.

There's nothing better for laying hens or growing chicks than green cut bone. It furnishes everything needed for bone and muscle, develops the body and makes strong, husky fowls. For the laying hens it furnishes a supply of egg forming materials, and helps to keep the hens healthy. If judiciously fed, there is nothing better than ground bone, and since home mills are so cheap, and so perfect in their operations, there is no reason why every one should not own one.

The writer has found that when less than one hundred hens were kept it paid a handsome profit to buy a mill. The bones can be had at any butcher shop at practically no cost, and the labor of grinding them on a good cutter is just enough for exercise. Ground bone should be fed about every other day, or a small portion may be given each day. It may be fed as a separate food, or it may be mixed with a mash. Watch carefully that it is given the hens regularly, as an oversupply will do great injury.

Whitewash the Henhouse.

Every poultryman should give the henhouse a periodical coat of lime-wash, and the oftener he does it the better. The matter is a very simple one. If the house is small, all you may need is a lime-wash brush, and a bucket of water into which a few handfuls of quicklime have been put, well stirred together and allowed to settle. The stuff when put on should be about as thick as cream. A handful of common rough salt will help it to adhere to the walls, a spoonful or two of liquid carbolic acid will help it to do its murderous work on animal life, and a little bit of powder-blue (washing blue) will prevent the white coat turning yellow by and by.

If the henhouse is a large one it will pay to use a sprayer for putting on the lime-wash. This is a most effective way of whitewashing any building.—Louisiana Rice Journal.

A Good Cheap Pump.

This consists of a "stock" of common piping; size should be one and one-half inches, and must be clamped to the casing. Spout and handle brace can be put on by a blacksmith in a few minutes. Suction rod must be attached to handle as shown in cut. The hook on the end of the handle is an essential feature. The cost is comparatively nothing.—Jno. R. Sater, in the Epitomist.

One Male For Flock.

Never have more than one male bird in the flock at the same time. Better results will be obtained by alternating males every week or so, than to yard them all at the same time.

Here and There.

No one deserves credit for doing what he wants to, if he does it when he has to.

People will pay for knowledge as well as for anything else if they believe it to be something they already know.

The wise merchant reads much, reflects on what he reads, rejects the impractical, adopts the useful, and adds it to his business.

Part Paragraphs.

The man who is without an idea has generally the greatest idea of himself.

A man cannot see his own faults when he is looking at the faults of others.

It is a wise man who is as careful of his credit as he is of his cash.

It requires as much courage to spend the last dollar as it does the first one.

Useful For Feeding Hogs.

A number of breeders use a crate for handling hogs and find it a very useful article. It should be made as light and strong as possible, two by two inch posts and one by four inch white pine strips being used. The most useful size is fifty-four inches long, thirty inches high and sixteen inches wide, inside measurements. The bottom is made one inch smaller each way than the inside measurement in order to allow the crate to slip down over it. Two pieces of half-inch gas pipe twenty-four inches long can then be slipped through the holes in the lower side pieces, which will hold the bottom up and also serve as handles when lifting it.

After the crate is finished keep it in the yard where the hogs will get used to it, and when you want to pick out a hog place the bottom of the crate where it will be handy; then pick up the crate, with the right hand holding the upper crosspiece, and the left hand holding a side slat near the opposite end, and after you have the "swing of it" approach the hog from the rear and a little to the left side and pitch the crate lengthwise over him, letting go with the left hand, that the front end may strike the earth first.

Hold fast with the right hand and pull the crate backward, and you will find that you can in this manner take the hog anywhere you choose. Do not speak, and keep out of sight of the hog as much as possible. Do not try to hold the crate still or to back him on the bottom of the crate until he quiets down a little. You will be surprised to see how quiet he will become after he has walked backward a few rods. To put him into another crate or through a door, says the Twentieth Century Farmer, raise the front end a little, and he will go in like a shot.

A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE

Of Painting Requirements Will Save Much Expense.

When one sees the surface of a house or other building scaling, or peeling, or spotted or blistered, or showing other symptoms of paint "disease," it is evident that a poor painter has been on the job, or that poor paint was used—or possibly that a good painter has been dominated by a property-owner who knew nothing about paint.

It is an easy matter to be informed on paint and painting. A complete painting guide, including a book of color schemes, either for exterior or interior—specifications for all kinds of painting,—and an instrument for detecting adulteration in paint material, with directions for using it, may be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Bldg., New York City, and asking for House-owner's Painting Outfit No. 49.

Then, every houseowner should make it a point to get only well-known reliable brands in buying his materials. Pure white lead is especially important, or the paint will not prove satisfactory. The famous "Dutch Boy Painter" trademark of National Lead Company, the largest makers of pure white lead, is an absolute guarantee of the purity and quality of the white lead sold under it. That trademark is a safeguard against paint trouble.

Be just before you are generous.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said nothing would restore my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETNA DONOVAN, Box 290, Willimantic, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

There is quite a difference between the door-jamb and the jam that mother used to make.

STRUCK DOWN.

Worn Out and Prostrated With a Treacherous Trouble.

Miss Emma Shirley, Kill Buck, N. Y., says: "Under my doctor's treatment for general debility and stomach trouble I failed to improve, and had to take to my bed. I was terribly nervous; headache and dizzy spells and awful spells of pain in the back racked me. The kidney secretions were much disordered. I consulted specialists, but without relief, and sank lower and lower until given up to die. Kidney trouble was the cause all the time, and when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I began to improve right away. In good time I was cured, and gained every bit I had lost."
